'Splash and dash' suspects nabbed

BROOKLYN. Two alleged thieves were arraigned yesterday in Brooklyn Criminal Court on charges that they were behind a "splash and dash" robbery pattern.

Amaurys Hernandez, 26, and Andy Lopez, 31, allegedly hit up 62 delis, discount stores and pizzerias in Brooklyn and Queens during the past year. Before they left, they poured bleach over the ATM machines and cash registers to hide their fingerprints.

$217K
The duo allegedly made off with $217,000 before being caught.

The spree started last August and continued until Oct. 10, cops said. The suspects told detectives they were inspired by the Ben Affleck movie "The Town," where criminals use bleach to destroy evidence, according to NYPD spokesman Paul Browne. METRO/AB

Cops: Two gropers in jail, two loose

Police say they caught latest suspect on the street, watching porn with pants unzipped But he could be one of four suspects in 20 sex attacks

DCPI/NYPD

The NYPD released six different sketches of men who they say groped women throughout Brooklyn. Two suspects were arrested, but two are still at large, police say.

Police nabbed a second suspect Monday in a rash of sex assaults in Brooklyn, but two more men believed to also be behind the crimes are still roaming the streets.

Cops arrested Queens resident Joshua Flecha, 32, on Monday morning on Greenwood Avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets, after officers in a passing police cruiser suspected that he was trying to break into a car.

When police pulled over and asked Flecha to put his hands up, they found he was holding his cell phone, which was playing a pornographic video. He also had his pants unzipped, police said.

He was also allegedly carrying marijuana.

Police thought Flecha resembled one of the men suspected in the string of assaults. A woman, 37, picked him out of a lineup as the man who grabbed her on May 7 as she swiped her Metrocard at the Seventh Avenue station in Park Slope. Cops said he grabbed her breasts, exposed himself and masturbated.

An NYPD spokesman said charges were pending against him for the May 7 assault, and police set up lineups with other victims, which could take some time, with the number of attacks now up to 20.

Cops say Flecha is one of four suspected men accused of the attacks in Sunset Park, Park Slope and Windsor Terrace. Last week, Adolfo Martinez, 26, was arrested and charged with groping, as well.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

From politicians to performers, celebs flock to Zuccotti Park Big-bucks stars show solidarity with groups advocating for financial and political reform But are they seeking equality or just free publicity?

EMMANUEL DUNAND/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Rev. Jesse Jackson talks with young Occupiers.

A parade of celebrities has poured into Zuccotti Park since the Occupy Wall Street movement began more than a month ago, attracting the likes of everyone from Susan Sarandon and Michael Moore to "Gossip Girl" star Penn Badgley.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson swung by Monday night, where he linked arms with protesters to form a barricade around a medical tent, which police wanted to take down. And Sarandon joined OWS protesters at a rally outside Sotheby's yesterday.

But some of the big-name visitors may be merely trying to capitalize off the international attention the protest has garnered, say some.

"It's good for their egos," said Doug Muzzio, a professor of public affairs at Baruch College.

"On one hand, this guy is from a past era and is past his prime, looking for attention," he said of Jackson. "Or, at one time, and even now, he stood for things this movement seems to be standing for."

And most of the celebrity visitors easily fall into Occupy's much-maligned "1 percent": Kanye West tweets about the challenges of Persian rug shopping and what it's like to fly in private jets, and Sarandon admitted she went to Zuccotti Park on her way to the airport — where she boarded a flight to Italy.

Even Democratic politicians like former New York Gov. David Patterson and New York City Rep. Charlie Rangel, who both stopped by, may not always be welcome.

"It adds an air of legitimacy," said Muzzio. "It has an uplifting effect. But at the same time, given the sense of the Occupy Wall Street folks, the Rangels and the Patersons and other politicians of the world are not necessarily their allies in this."

"In terms of electoral politics, it doesn't matter," he said. "Going down there can't hurt careers because, in a sense, they don't have any."

OWS: The celebrity protest of choice

NEW YORK. Some have compared the Occupation's outrage to that of the Tea Party. But David Birdsell, dean of the school of public affairs at Baruch College, said Occupy Wall Street is a more attractive forum for celebrities to be associated with. "There aren't major negatives with this in the same way charges of racism were leveled with the early phases of the Tea Party," he said. METRO/CG

Mayoral conflict of interest?

NEW YORK. Mayor Michael Bloomberg said Monday that he keeps Occupy Wall Street out of his relationship. Bloomberg shares a home with girlfriend Diana Taylor, who sits on the board of directors for Brookfield Office Properties — the company that owns Zuccotti Park.

When asked whether he has discussed the movement with his girlfriend, Bloomberg responded, "I can tell you that pillow talk in our house is not about Occupy Wall Street or Brookfield Properties."

Brookfield has allowed protesters to camp in the park for more than a month, but Bloomberg continues to express concern over its deteriorating condition.

Brookfield told protesters the park would be temporarily cleared for cleaning last Friday and that protesters' gear would not be allowed back in. The cleaning was called off after protesters vowed to form a human barricade around the park. METRO

New York lags behind in donors

New Yorkers might not hesitate to tell you what they think — but don't expect them to donate an organ.

In New York state, only 15 percent of residents are registered to donate their organs, according to public broadcasting station WNET.

New York has the third-lowest rate of donations in the nation, but the third-highest number of people who need transplants.

According to the New York Alliance for Donation, more than 9,600 New Yorkers sit on waiting lists each year — many more than the 1,500 who receive organs annually.

Right across the Hudson River, New Jersey has a significantly higher rate of donation, with 31 percent of residents registered as donors.

Four in 10 people in the U.S. are signed up to be an organ donor.

Organ donor advocates say it's partly because of New York's complicated donor forms. New Yorkers can register online, but must print, sign and return a letter of consent separately. In New Jersey, for example, residents can simply register online.

Judgment waits for Camping followers

Failed doomsday phophet at it again, but this time with more modesty End of days predicted for Friday

Five months after falsely predicting that the world would end on May 21, Christian radio host Rev. Harold Camping is once again saying that the end is nigh. This time, though, he's doing it quietly.

Camping's predictions that the world would end back in May were preceded with a media blitz, with signs of the apocalypse emblazoned everywhere from billboards to buses to banner ads on websites. But when the world failed to end, Camping became a laughingstock.

Camping held on to his faith, and proclaimed a new date for the end of the world: Oct. 21. People

"The end is going to come very, very quietly, probably within the next month." CAMPING laughed, and then generally moved on. But once again the date approaches. How is he handling the apocalypse the second time around? Very carefully, as it turns out.

There are no bus ads and no billboards this time, and no warnings of giant earthquakes and fiery volcanoes. Camping's newest statement, playing intermittently on Family Radio, advises that for nonbelievers the end will be soft and gentle.

Even the date, so prominent in the first campaign, has been de-emphasized. Camping merely warns "the end is going to come very, very quietly probably within the next month."

So don't worry, heathens: The world is only "probably" going to end on Friday.

Cain funds go toward own book

WASHINGTON. Republican presidential contender Herman Cain used campaign funds to buy his own books from his motivational speaking company, Federal Election Commission records show.

Although his autobiography was published by a division of Simon & Schuster, Cain paid T.H.E New Voice Inc. $36,511 for books. His campaign spent $4 million through Sept. 30, including more than $64,000 paid to his motivational speaking company for airfare, lodging, supplies and the books.

Cain's autobiography, "This is Herman Cain! My Journey to the White House," made its debut during the weekend in fourth place on The New York Times best-seller list. The FEC has let campaigns buy candidates' books as long as they don't profit by the sale. BLOOMBERG

How Progress in Human Genome Research Will Impact Personalized Medicine

Presented by NYU Cancer Institute, an NCI-designated Cancer Center

Join us for a discussion about the current human genome research being conducted in our laboratories, and learn how these findings may directly impact personalized medicine and the care you or someone you love would receive if diagnosed with cancer. Personalized medicine has the potential to transform cancer care through earlier diagnosis, more effective prevention and treatment and avoidance of the side effects associated with various cancer treatment methods.

Sgt. Shalit returns home to Israel in Palestinian swap

Israeli soldier Gilad Shalit and hundreds of Palestinians crossed Israel's borders in opposite directions yesterday as a thousand-for-one prisoner swap brought joy to families but did little to ease decades of conflict.

In one of the biggest ever such exchanges between the two sides, a pale and gaunt Sgt. Shalit was flown to his parents' home in northern Israel after more than five years held incommunicado by Hamas in the Gaza Strip, while a first 477 of over 1,000 Palestinians to be released under the bargain left Israeli jails for Gaza, the West Bank and abroad.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Shalit is greeted by Israeli PM Benjamin Netanyahu.

Flag-waving crowds greeted long unseen loved ones as heroes and uncompromising talk on either side left few illusions for world leaders who urged Israel and the divided Palestinian factions to build on the long-awaited bargain brokered by Germany and Egypt to reopen wider peace negotiations.

In an interview with Egyptian television as he passed through on his way from Gaza, a visibly weak and dazed Shalit, 25, said of 5,000 Palestinians who remain in Israeli jails: "I hope this deal will promote peace between Israel and the Palestinians."

But, while leaders made mildly conciliatory comments about each other's role in achieving the deal, there was no sign of warmth across the frontline of the struggle for land and security between Palestinians and Israel. REUTERS

Viacom, Google battle on vids

NEW YORK. Viacom Inc. told an appeals court that Google's YouTube willfully violated copyrights by letting users post videos of copyrighted television shows and movies without authorization.

Both sides presented oral arguments yesterday before the U.S. Appeals Court in Manhattan. YouTube told the court it removed infringing videos from the site when notified.

Viacom sued YouTube in 2007, claiming the site's users were illegally uploading thousands of videos of Viacom programs such as "South Park" and "The Daily Show." The entertainment company sought $1 billion in damages. BLOOMBERG

Starbucks brews light Blonde roast, seeks new visitors

SPENCER PLATT/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Does Starbucks CEO Howard Schultz prefer blondes?

Starbucks Corp. is going "Blonde," expanding its coffee lineup with its lightest roast to date in a move aimed at wooing more customers and capturing a bigger share of the U.S. coffee market.

The world's biggest coffee company is known for its dark roasts, which have prompted some critics to say the chain's coffee tastes burned or bitter.

The new, lighter roast unveiled yesterday is milder in body and acidity than Starbucks' traditional coffees. Executives said customers had been asking for a lighter roast, and they expect Blonde to appeal to a broad audience.

Mass-market competitors McDonald's Corp. and Dunkin' Donuts offer milder brewed coffees, and in recent years, have added lattes, mochas and other sorts of "fancy" espresso drinks popularized by Starbucks.

"This is a significant opportunity for Starbucks to gain a greater share of the brewed coffee market — both in our stores and down the coffee aisle," Cliff Burrows, president of Starbucks Americas, said in a statement. REUTERS

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Soulja Boy arrested in Georgia

It's going to take a lot of fancy footwork for Soulja Boy to get out of this mess.

TMZ.com reports that the "Crank That" superstar (real name DeAndre Cortez Way) was busted for weed possession by Temple Police Department officers in Temple, Ga. early Tuesday morning.

Apparently, the car service Escalade the 21-year-old was riding in was pulled over for a traffic violation. The vehicle was then searched, and police found a "substantial amount of marijuana and cash inside the vehicle." The rapper, along with four other men who were in the car with him, were arrested on charges of possession of marijuana, possession with intent to distribute and possession of a firearm during the commission of a crime.

The site reports there "was roughly $70,000 in cash and drugs" in the car — as well as a gun.

LaBeouf gets punched yet again

Honestly, Shia LaBeouf gets into more fights than a gaggle of drunk Southies. The "Transformers" star got into yet another brawl at Cinema Public House in Vancouver last week, according to Radar Online. "He got into a confrontation with a couple of people. He took a few punches to the face. He was obviously pretty intoxicated," a source says. The actor and another patron were reportedly bounced from the establishment, but their altercation continued on the street until both could be restrained. TMZ.com has a clip of the fight (of course they do) and you can see a man tearing off his shirt before punching LaBeouf. It's refreshing to know people other than me want to punch him.

Clooney debuts new girlfriend

While they've previously acknowledged their new relationship, George Clooney and girlfriend Stacy Keibler made their red carpet debut, posing for photos together at the New York Film Festival premiere of his new film, "The Descendants," according to Hollyscoop. While Keibler previously competed on "Dancing with the Stars," Clooney swore he'd never be a contestant. "I'm a terrible dancer," he said.

'Hannah Montana' DUI arrest

Mitchel Musso, the 20-year-old former "Hannah Montana" actor, was arrested for driving under the influence earlier this week, according to TMZ. Musso was pulled over after failing to slow down for police who were directing traffic at an intersection. According to the police report, officers approached Musso's 2007 black Mercedes Benz and detected a "strong odor of alcohol." Musso was administered a Breathalyzer and tested "well above" the legal limit.

Sarandon vs. Pope Benedict XVI

Susan Sarandon is taking on Pope Benedict XVI. While discussing "Dead Man Walking" at the Hamptons Film Festival, Sarandon had some unkind words for the head of the Catholic Church, according to Newsday. Sarandon explained that she'd sent a copy of the book upon which the film was based — which advocates against the death penalty — to the pontiff. "The last one," Sarandon clarified, "not this Nazi one we have now."

Dom Kennedy

With "2mph," Dom Kennedy has penned a song that anybody who has ever felt cool in a car can relate to. "Two miles per hour, so everybody sees me," he repeats in a sing-song chorus that is instantly classic. He then proceeds to rap in a rapidfire flow that is both innovative and funny. If he's even half as charming live, then this will be a show not to miss. Catch him: Friday, Highline Ballroom

Purity Ring

Listening to this Canadian duo, you might think that your computer is misreading a CD by pop divas of bygone days like Nu Shooz or Exposé. The melodies and vocal effects are 1980s top 40, but there's something sick going on underneath the surface, like dubstep sub-bass booms and fat hip-hop beats. But when you see them live, you'll feel like you're the one whose system is having difficulty pro- cessing the music. As Megan James sings sweet rhymes, Corin Riddick plays an instrument that looks like it's a row of repurposed draft beer taps. Pipes illuminate and the computer sensors within spit out notes. Catch them: Friday, Webster Hall, Saturday, Mercury Lounge

A welcome addition to the chill-wave that Neon Indian pioneered, Psychic Twin offers glittery synths over a pleasantly fuzzy drone with breathy vocals on top. It's the ice cream sundae of sugary dream pop and bound to make for a surprisingly energetic live show. Catch them: Friday, Rock Shop

Sean Durkin's very big year

▶ Durkin wrote and directed "Martha Marcy May Marlene."

Writer-director Sean Durkin's first feature film, "Martha Marcy May Marlene," deals with the trauma of life inside and after escaping a cult — though that word is never used in the film. Told in a fractured chronology that highlights Martha's growing paranoia, the film is both beautiful and unsettling. Durkin discussed the genesis of his haunting film.

Where did the idea for this movie start?

It started with just a very simple desire to maybe make a film about a cult. I felt like I hadn't seen anything that was modern and naturalistic. I wanted to do something that showed a little bit more of the subtle manipulation.

With the steps the cult leader (John Hawkes) takes to indoctrinate your heroine, it's almost like a how-to guide.

It's funny, these guys are all very generic. Like seriously, you read about them and they just all use the same tactics.

The word "cult" never comes up in the movie.

"Cult" has got a lot of connotations that aren't helpful when you're making a movie about someone being manipulated into certain things. I mean, no one in a cult ever talks about being in a cult or thinks they're in a cult. They just think that what they're doing is right, and they're doing what they believe in.

You're not ready for sniffle season until you get one, expert says Plus: Does the vaccine give you the flu?

With unseasonably warm weather bathing the Northeast in a sense of summery security, it's been hard to imagine that the winter flu season is already upon us. However, October through March is the official period when influenza strikes most, well, virulently.

"You should get your flu shot as early as you can," warns Boston-based CVS pharmacist Minh Do, PharmD. "That allows your immune system time to build up antibodies." Your body makes these proteins to fight bacteria and diseases.

It takes approximately 14 days for flu shots to become effective, so if you happen to catch the bug right after your shot, it's not because of the vaccine itself.

Who's at risk?

Do says the vaccine "is the best way to protect yourself against the flu virus, particularly for people who are more vulnerable." Those most vulnerable to getting the virus include:

- Anyone with a weakened immune system
- Children under six
- Pregnant women and their husbands
- Nursing professionals
- Elderly people over 65

"You are not instantly protected right when you get the flu shot," Do continues. "You can never, ever get the flu virus from the flu shot. You might have already gotten the flu, but you may not have exhibited the symptoms until a few days later."

The World Health Organization has predicted that this season's strain will be the same as last winter's, but that doesn't mean that last year's shot is still good.

"Flu shots have a lifespan of four to six months. You need to get another one this year," says Do.

The standard flu shot also includes immunization against the H1N1 (so-called "swine flu") virus, but it won't protect against other yet-unknown flu strains.

"The WHO tries to predict the seasonal flu vaccine for the upcoming season, so it takes about six months to produce the ap-

The bottoms of my heels hurt all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning, or when I'm in a sitting position.

I have a large bump behind my big toe (bunion) which is always red and enlarged.

I have corns on my toes which get thicker no matter what shoes I wear.

My toes aren't straight- they are all bent and rotated.

▶ If you get your flu shot, you're less likely to wind up like this guy.

propriate vaccine based on the research of thousands of strains out there," Do says. "The WHO recommends which three flu viruses to be included in the seasonal flu vaccine to the FDA, and then the FDA determines which vaccine goes into production, which takes six months. In the next few months they'll be predicting the next flu strains for the upcoming 2012 season. So it's a long, long process."

- Nearly 5 million holiday celebrations were missed
- More than 3 million vacations were changed
- More than 5 million sporting events were missed

Vitamin E and prostate cancer

Study subjects: 35,000 men age 55 and older in the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico
Location of study: U.S.
Results: The National Cancer Institute found that men taking vitamin E daily are 17 percent more likely to develop prostate cancer.
Significance: Results are so far inconclusive, as two prior studies on vitamin E and prostate cancer drew dissimilar results.

Blood pressure and restless legs syndrome

Study subjects: Women with RLS
Location of study: U.S.
Results: Middle-aged women with restless legs syndrome are 20 percent more likely to also have hypertension, and those who experience regular instances of RLS (15 or more times a month) were 41 percent more likely to have it, per the journal Hypertenison.
Significance: High blood pressure is a strong risk factor for heart disease.

Chocolate and stroke risk

Study subjects: 33,372 women aged 49 to 83
Location of study: Stockholm, Sweden
Results: Women who enjoy chocolate in moderation may be at a lower risk for stroke than those who don't, Time.com reports. Women who ate between one and two bars a week had a 20 percent lower risk of stroke than those who ate the smallest amount.
Significance: Chocolate has also been linked to lower blood pressure and a lower risk for heart disease, but it's still high in sugar and calories.

Time for a career change?

The question

I have a successful career in finance, but I find it unfulfilling. I work absurdly long hours and I've noticed that I'm not performing as I should. I'm in my 30s and would like to do something where I can make a difference in people's lives. I'm thinking of teaching, but I'm not sure about the day-to-day. I'm also concerned about going from making more than $100,000 to much less and going back to school. My wife works, but I feel I should be the breadwinner.

JONATHAN ALPERT
WWW.JONATHANALPERT.COM

Go for it! Make the move, because if you stay where you are you'll be forced out due to your continuing decline in performance. This is not too different from a bad relationship: The longer you stay in it, the greater the dissatisfaction and likelihood of poor behavior driving you out. You're a young guy with many years of accomplishment ahead of you, and you have the benefit of knowing now that you desire something more fulfilling. Many clients come to me in your situation; they are in often their 50s and make changes. You can too.

You're anxious about whether a new career is right; that's normal. Do your homework. Meet with a school's admissions committee to learn about the application process and course requirements, and talk to professionals in the field. Get a clear sense of a teacher's daily workload. Explore programs for professionals wishing to start a second career as a teacher. You'll be looked at very favorably, as you'll bring a body of knowledge and real-life experience into the classroom.

Your concerns about money are legitimate, as you'll be taking a cut. Think about what's most important: Is it making several hundred thousand despite working "absurdly long hours," or is it doing something rewarding and having time to enjoy your family, even if it means less money? Sure, you might have to modify your lifestyle — but in the end, I suspect that enjoying time with loved ones will win out over a huge bank account.

As for your need to be the breadwinner: That's something you'll have to reconcile with your ego and the fact that it's 2011, not 1950. Consider yourself lucky.

Protesters have no clue

RE: "US PROTESTS CALL, LONDON PICKS UP": Metro asked three London protesters why they were protesting; none could answer the question. They spoke in generalizations and abstractions like "raising awareness" and who is portrayed in the media. But they never said why. Considering that the Brits have cradle-to-grave health care and often "go on the dole" when they are unemployed, it's surprising that they have any reason to protest at all.
FRANK GIALLOMBARD, STATEN ISLAND

GOP: Grand Oil Patrons

The Republican-controlled House of Representatives is pushing for what? More oil drilling and using the Gulf spill to push for more land drilling everywhere. Drilling does not create jobs for ordinary people, just oil industry insiders.

Obama wants to destroy us

RE: "PRESIDENT BLASTS GOP JOBS BLOCKS": This president is using our country as a credit card with no limit. We have a national debt of $14.8 trillion and he wants to pass a jobs bill for $477 billion? Where is he getting this money? What he needs to do is create incentives for companies to bring their manufacturing back to the states.
RYAN HANDREN, VIA E-MAIL

The president is cramming green energy down our throats. That is because unions are major contributors to the Democrat party, and he is hellbent on destroying our energy industry because he's afraid of the environmental radicals showing they are more radical than he.

Where is your outrage now?

The complacent attitude from many of the clear anti-Semitic remarks and signs in many, many of these OWS protests all over the country is sickening. Look on many websites for proof of these remarks. If any one of these were about blacks, gays or Muslims, there would be outrage from all sides. JOAN HAZLET, NJ

Forget Mitt; how's Hussein?

If only the media could recognize its corruption. They are so concerned about the Mormon background of Romney, yet completely ignored the Muslim background of our own President Hussein Obama. BILL DUNCAN, LANDING

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Take care not to let your anger out on an innocent bystander if you are outmaneuvered on an important matter. Count to 10 before opening your mouth.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Maintain mental discipline regardless of what happens to throw you off. Underestimating the value of essential elements in your endeavors could cause you to unravel.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Keep both your social and business contacts separate and, above all, avoid all speculative arrangements with friends. If things don't go the way they should, you'll be to blame.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Taking on more objectives or projects that you can comfortably manage is self-defeating, so don't gamble on your workload. Dedicate yourself to only one or two targets.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Don't be coerced into putting your signature on something that you're hesitant about. What you agree to might be deliberately distorted.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. It behooves you to be self-reliant, because people upon whom you depend might make promises they later find they can't keep.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If you're a bit slow and your thinking isn't quite as sharp as it usually is, forgo attempting to match wits with an adversary. Back off until a riper time.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Look before you leap when attempting to handle a complex assignment. You could easily misread something and end up making your task twice as hard to accomplish.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. There is a strong chance that some social plans you've been looking forward to will get canceled or postponed. Be prepared with some backup plans.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. It's never smart to allow someone who can be dead weight into an arrangement where you and several others are aiming for a specific target. He or she is likely to hold you back once again.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is one thing that could cause you much disarray, and that is proceeding forward on an idea without laying out a proper game plan. Take a moment to formulate one.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Unless you are prudent in the management of your resources, you're not likely to have the financial wherewithal to make ends meet when you really need to. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Raiders trade for Palmer

It was costly, but the Raiders may have their franchise quarterback.

Oakland traded a first-round pick next year and a conditional first in 2013 for the rights to former Bengals QB Carson Palmer yesterday.

Rex touts team's resilience

If you listened to the pundits — not to mention some of the players — Monday's game against Miami was a must win.

The Dolphins are far from a elite team, but the win was important nonetheless.

"This is a resilient team and a resilient bunch of guys," Ryan said. "The season is far from over. We responded the way I thought we would."

Now, however, the team turns to much tougher foes. They will face a gauntlet of San Diego, at Buffalo and New England over the next four weeks.

Missing in action

What happened to the Plaxico Burress the Jets thought they were signing? Rex Ryan: 'It just seems like we're missing just a little bit'

He's 6-foot-5. He caught the game-winning touchdown in one of the biggest upsets in Super Bowl history. And he can't make a play to save his life.

When the Jets let Braylon Edwards go in the offseason they thought they'd found the perfect replacement in Burress. He was exactly the tall, rangy receiver Mark Sanchez needed in the red zone. So far this season he has two catches inside the opponents' 20-yard line.

"It just seems like we're missing just a little bit," head coach Rex Ryan said yesterday. "But I'm encouraged by the fact that, hey, we'll keep working, and I think as the season goes along, you're going to see better and better chemistry and having the ball thrown to Plax more as the season goes on."

The Jets targeted Burress four times in the team's 24-6 win over the Dolphins. He had one catch for 16 yards and a glaring drop on a would-be first down.

Burress was away from the game for two years in prison, of course, and much of the reason for his absence in the offense has been blamed on that.

"It takes a while to get a feel for the guy," Ryan said. "The chemistry is there, it's just a matter of fine-tuning just a little bit more and I think we're gonna be just fine." MARK OSBORNE

28

Burress has just two catches for 28 yards and no touchdowns in the fourth quarter when the margin is within seven points.

Giants have hard schedule ahead

The NFL bye week is time for teams to get healthy, assess where they are and devise a plan for improvement when they finally return to action.

The Giants will use the bye week for all of the above, but will also keep an eye toward the future. Of their remaining 10 games, the Giants (4-2) have only one gimme — home against the hapless Dolphins (0-5) in two weeks. But after squishing the fish, the Giants face a murderous schedule.

New York then plays at the Patriots (5-1), at the rejuvenated 49ers (5-1), home for the Eagles (2-4), at the Saints (4-2), home for the world champion Packers (6-0), at the Cowboys (2-3), home for the Redskins (3-2) and "at" the Jets (3-3) in what should be a highly-charged Christmas Eve tilt. Not a gimme in sight.

Surely life will be easier if the walking wounded return within two weeks. Big Blue can surely use the services of Justin Tuck (neck/groin), Brandon Jacobs (knee), Chris Snee (concussion) and Prince Amukamara (foot). Those are three stellar starters and one prized rookie that can go a long way in determining if New York's fast start is another mirage, as it has been the last two seasons, or the start of a playoff-caliber season.

US PRESSWIRE

▶ Jacobs should return after the bye.

"We are going to see what we need to do for these next 10 games and the rest of the season," guard David Diehl said. "We are going to see what we need to correct to make sure the rest of our season is successful."

World Series ready to start

- Cardinals rode an epic comeback
- Rangers look to avenge last year

Leaf through every publication's preseason World Series predictions and you'll find mostly Red Sox-Phillies. Nobody was ready to go out on a limb and forecast the Cardinals would open the Fall Classic against the Rangers.

Two months ago, the Rangers might not have been such an outlandish pick. While the Red Sox and Yankees were dueling for AL East supremacy, Texas was quietly getting ready to clinch the AL West.

"On November the first we committed ourselves to trying to get back here because we knew we had the potential in the clubhouse to do it," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "A lot of times people say a lot of things that they like to do, and they don't usually live up to it. But the character inside my clubhouse, they lived up to it."

As for the Cardinals, two months ago they dropped 10 1/2 games behind wild-card leader Atlanta. Starting on Aug. 25, the Cardinals won 23 of 32 games then knocked out the Phillies, who helped St. Louis clinch a playoff berth, in the playoffs.

"This is in the improbable, incredible, overwhelming," St. Louis manager Tony LaRussa said after the NLCS. "They're all special. This one here has its own mark, because coming from that far back is historic I think."

- St. Louis reliever Octavio Dotel began his career as a Met in 1999 and also pitched for the Yankees in 2006.
- Texas bullpen coach Andy Hawkins pitched for the Yankees from 1989-91.

- St. Louis outfielder Lance Berkman spent three frustrating months with the Yankees last year.

Framing things in a new way

Artist Annie Sklaver's 3-D paper-cut portraits are putting a unique spin on the usual family composition

Family photographs are a beautiful thing — how else can you capture such singular moments in life? But Brooklyn artist Annie Sklaver is elevating their beauty to the next level with her unique paper-cut portraits. As she describes them, her works are "carefully crafted 3-D portraits based on a photograph using a collage of patterns, colors and shapes and shadows to evoke a particular moment in time."

What makes her work different is that while they capture the essence of the moment, they're beautifully simple. "The portraits don't have facial features or small details, so my clients are always amazed when their portrait looks exactly like them and has so much emotion," the 27-year-old says. "I use shadows very carefully to capture movement and depth, and the 3-D aspect really allows the portrait to come alive in the frame."

GET MORE METRO ONLINE: WWW.METRO.US

She continues: "Since I focus on body language, and the way people touch or lean on each other, you see the little things that are unique to that specific relationship. All of a sudden you notice how they position themselves in relation to each other, and the image becomes a lot more intimate."

The burgeoning artist currently works on her commissions after getting home from her day job as a market researcher. Sklaver tells us the majority of her orders are intended to be a first wedding anniversary gift (they are made out of paper, after all).

"This is a side project, but it channels a creative energy that I will always feel," she says. "Someday, I hope that this energy will lead me to illustrate a children's book — or a lot of children's books."
